DETAILED ACTION

Receipt is acknowledged of the Appeal Brief filed 11/30/2007.

Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

The following is a new rejection of the claims:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-13, 33-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The factors to be considered in determining whether a disclosure meets the enablement requirement of 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, have been described in In re Wands, 8 USPQ2d 1400 (Fed. Cir. 1988). Among these factors are: (1) the nature of the invention; (2) the state of the prior art; (3) the relative skill of those in the art; (4) the predictability or unpredictability of the art; (5) the breadth of the claims; (6) the amount of direction or guidance presented; (7) the presence or absence of working examples; and (8) the quantity of experimentation necessary. When the above factors are weighed, it is the examiner's position that one skilled in the art could not practice the invention without undue experimentation.

The following are the most pertinent to the instant fact pattern:

Art Unit: 1615

(1) The nature of the invention:

The invention provides a method of promoting angiogenesis through the use of an implantable delivery device which causes blood to pool in myocardial tissue.

(2) The state of the prior art

PTCA and bypass grafts are commonly used to treat myocardial tissue ischemia.

(4) The predictability or unpredictability of the art

The unpredictability of the peptide art is very high. Other attempts have resulted in restenosis, incomplete revascularization and an sudden closure of the blood vessel.

(6) The amount of direction or guidance presented

The specification adequately describes the manner in which the device is implanted into the myocardial tissue in order to bring about pooling of blood.

(7) The presence or absence of working examples

No working examples are provided which would lead one to believe the disclosed device can be used to promote angiogenesis.

(8) The quantity of experimentation necessary

Experimental evidence of adequate perfusion would require not only physical examination, and study of the heart itself on a histological and gross anatomical level in order to adequately show that angiogenesis has actually occurred.

As such, the instant application is not enabled for the claimed method of promoting angiogenesis.
